

Audacious 3: Bi-Fold Mentalism by Abhinav Bothra Mixed Media DOWNLOAD

Four excuses to hand out business cards as well as to carry a bi-fold wallet.

Aware: A participant draws/writes a free thought on a card and without ever coming in direct contact (that's what the audience thinks) you know exactly what has been drawn/written.

B4C: The classic plot of confabulation made compact to fit in a wallet.

ConFab: Squeezed B4C, so that it becomes easy.

Drawing D: An impromptu drawing duplication.

FAQs:

Q: What is Bi-fold Mentalism?

A: It's a term Abhinav Bothra came up with for mentalism that can be performed with a bi-fold wallet.

Q: Do these allow handing out business cards?

A: Yes, all of them are perfect excuses to hand out business cards and none of them require gimmicks.

Q: Close-up or parlor or stage?

A: Abhinav Bothra prefers using these in close-up situations and suggests to keep it that way.

Q: I am a female; can I use these?

A: Although these are designed to be used for a men's bi-fold wallet, B4C and ConFab can be tweaked a little for women's clutches.

Q: How hard are the tricks explained in here?

A: In technical aspects: Aware and B4C is intermediate, ConFab is easy, and Drawing D is advanced.
