An impossible prediction effect!

A deck of cards is given to someone to hold onto as a prediction.

A second deck of cards is then introduced. That deck is shuffled and shown to be randomly mixed cards, all different from one another. The spectator then cuts anywhere they would like in the deck and shows everyone the card. Whatever card has been chosen (let's say it is the 7 of Hearts)... you say you will use that number. The spectator now opens the second prediction deck he was given at the beginning and counts down 7 cards from the top. He turns over the seventh card and it is a blank card that says, "you will pick this card." The rest of the prediction deck is now shown to be completely ordinary except for the blank prediction card with writing on it. A modern-day miracle.
