Paul Zenon in Linking Rings

A self-penned, semi-autobiographical theater piece marking a distinct change of direction for Paul Zenon, award-winning magician, comedian and actor who, in a career spanning four decades, has performed in around forty countries and made literally hundreds of network TV appearances. By far his most personal work to date.

About the show - 'Houdini's right-hand man deals with the death of his boss. A half century later, a Blackpool joke shop proprietor takes on a wide-eyed young protege. An affectionate look at a misspent youth and unsung heroes. Not a magic show, but magical nonetheless.'

Running time: 1 hour 7 minutes

"A touching, deeply authentic, beautifully-made magic cabinet of theater-story. Outstanding and unmissable."

- Fringe Review

"Heartfelt and strikingly genuine... there's a warmth and charisma to Zenon's storytelling that just can't be faked."

- The Stage

"A contemporary master of his art."

- The Times

"Zenon's deceptive self-deprecation belies the precision and the sharpness of his warm wit... seeing will be believing."

- The Guardian

"A contemporary master of his art."

- The Times

"A love letter to a Blackpool magic shop... for magicians it is a veritable treat."

- Magic Week

"A beautifully crafted piece. Blunt and charming... amusing and touching."

- Evening Standard

"There's a rawness in his delivery, a heartfelt emotion."

- Edinburgh Evening News

"Zenon's affable nature shines through this honest and charming show. Artful storytelling... impressive deftness... so compelling."

- Broadway Baby
