This one feels like real mind reading!

Every now and then there is a mind-reading effect that sounds to good to be true. Welcome to A Beautiful Mind!

Out of the already infamous mentalism series The Schuman Notes by Molim El Barch comes a new hard-hitting and beautiful method to read someone's mind.

You ask your spectator to imagine herself sitting somewhere, reading a book of her choice, having an animal of her choice besides her and to drink something. All of this only in her mind!

Although this version is not one hundred percent propless, we can assure you that these freely chosen thoughts of the spectator are never written down or being named in any kind!

Yet you will be able to tell her exactly where she is sitting, what book she is reading, what animal she stroked and the taste of her drink she was just having a sip from in her mind.

Again, nothing was written down, no questions were asked!

If you want to leave a lasting impression on your audiences and look like a real mind reader, this is the effect that will get you there!
