

Cut no cut scissors

The performer holding a rope, hands over a scissors to the spectator and asks her to cut the rope in the middle. The spectator fails to open the scissors. She exerts her full strength but cannot separate the blades. The performer takes the scissors and immediately opens the scissors without any extra effort. He now hands over the scissors with the blades separated to the spectator. But now she cannot cut the rope as she fails to close the scissors. Finally the performer takes the scissors and cut the rope.

- The scissor is made of brass and it is silver plated. It is long cm 22,5 and wide cm 8.
- You may use this item as comedy gag when performing “Cut and restore rope”. Moreover this is a fantastic gag to use when a scissor is needed during a performance.
