
Marry Kiss Kill by Wessel Kort and Green Lemon

The beauty of a magic trick lies in its natural and innocent presentation, taking the viewer on a journey where reality bends, and the impossible becomes possible. With that spirit, we introduce Marry, Kiss, Kill.

Derived from the globally renowned parlor game, originally known as "Marry, Kiss, Kill," this trick incorporates the game's essence and twists it into an engaging 'out of this world' routine that leaves the audience mesmerized.

The Effect:

The participant is shown a series of cards. To simplify the process, they're only given two options: Kiss or Kill. They're asked, which individual would they choose to 'Kiss' and which one to 'Kill'? As the game progresses, it's sprinkled with a mix of light-hearted humor and unexpected turns.

Once all the cards have been played, it turns out that the correct predictions had continuously been on the back all along. The audience is completely astonished!

The Kicker:

But of course, it's called "Marry, Kiss, Kill." There's still a marrying to be done! From both piles, a random card is chosen. The names are then revealed. Immediately following this, the magician flips the two cards that have been CONSTANTLY in view. On them, the images of the two individuals (dressed in wedding attire!) are displayed!

...and they lived happily ever after!
