
THE FRAME by TCC

Terry is a talented magician and we are proud to have released several of his creations. Each effect is a unique display of his creativity and ingenuity.

We have once again collaborated with Terry to bring you his latest organic effect, The Frame.

In his previous releases, you'll notice that Terry often incorporates everyday objects into his routines, believing that a magician's character should appear as an ordinary person with extraordinary skills. The Frame is no exception and will surprise your audience even more.

You show a vintage pendant adorning your neck and borrow a ring from an audience member. The ring is noticeably smaller in diameter than the pendant. With a swift motion, the ring seemingly passes through the pendant, securing itself to the chain of your necklace.

No matter how the audience fiddles with it, they won't be able to take out the ring without removing the necklace from your neck.

The beauty of The Frame lies in its simplicity - there are no physical opening and closing mechanisms involved or pre-setups required. You can perform it anytime and anywhere, and even hand it over to the audience for examination.

The original design of The Frame was rectangular, surrounding a pendant shaped like a mechanical robot. However, Terry was later inspired by the Deathly Hallows from Harry Potter and modified the frame into a triangle to resemble the Cloak of Invisibility. The pendant features a magic wand, a quintessential wizard's item, and the audience member's ring represents the final missing artifact of the Deathly Hallows - the Resurrection Stone.

The Frame is crafted from 925 sterling silver with the same attention to detail and craftsmanship as real silver jewelry. The outer frame is engraved with ancient Babylonian-like cuneiform characters and has a worn and aged appearance to match the texture of ancient ruins. Additionally, the King of Diamonds is carved into the frame for a multipurpose reveal or prediction.
