EFFECT:

A magician shows 4 emojis from the back, and announces that all the 4 emojis are smiley faces. Then, when the magician shows one by one, the kids tell him that one has an angry face... so the magician removes that sad face... the magician says: "Now I will show you 3 happy emojis" and start showing one by one, but the last face is sad face...the kids start to laugh and tell the magician about that mistake...The magician looks at it, discovers that sad face and removes it instantaneously...

The magician says "Now, let me show you this 2 happy faces", the first is a happy face but the last is a sick face... The magician removes it when he (or she) discovers that the kids are laughing and pointing to that face... finally the magician says, well, I have one smiley emoji, and when the kids look at it they freaks out because is a crying emoji... when the magician looks at it and realizes that this is the only emoji and he (or she) has no more left, decides to ask the kids if they could do magic to transform that crying face into a happy face... when the kids say the magic words something awesome happens: the tears begin to slowly disappear.... the magician congratulate the children but the face is still sad... so the magician takes a pair of eyes , sticks it into the chin's face, turns it face down and shows the apparently happy face... the kids begin to laugh out loud and then, when they think it was impossible to change that face, it transforms into a party emoji!. Finally, the magician takes a marker and signs that party face to give to the birthday kid as a great souvenir.
