
FREE BEER BY Alan Wong

You are at a bar while keeping safe social distancing you bring up an interesting topic on color psychology. You show four different color chips and let your spectator remove three chips until only one was left for them. You talk about what color says about each person's personality.

You turn over the chips that are not chosen and reveal a message that matches the personality according to the color of the chip, which when you have revealed all the messages, you are likely to have created much laughter and most likely get a free beer every time!

You receive four color chips that tells a great story and pdf written instructions.

Great Ice-Breaker! Easy to carry and fun to do.