
Trust no Fella - Pokerdeck

Trust no Fella Playing Cards printed only 1000 decks!

The Trust no Fella Playing Cards are inspired by old cartoons from the 30s, the cuphead video game and the Alice in wonderland story.

The short story goes like this.

"The 4 different factions of the playing cards kingdom lived peaceful lives, until one day our little mysterious cheeky devil arrived. Her motives are unknown but she is determined on having all the factions fight each other to the end!"

She has stoked the fires of the old hatred that has been dwindling for ages between all the factions, now she watches, scheming and waiting for the winner of the conflict so she can make her next move."

The back design represents the conflict between the four factions. The whole back is engulfed in the flames of our cheeky devil, while at the center of the card is a hand being bitten by a snake in a circle with the symbols of the factions, this represents the conflict between the four factions of the playing card kingdom.