
SUKMA by Nawa Birawa & Steve Marchello

Imagine you can sense someone's soul!

You ask the spectator to write someone's name on the card and let the spectator put it into the envelope

Not only that, you even give the envelope and let the spectator cover it with their hands

You can describe how that person on that card looks like and of course also the name

No special envelope, no need to peek at the card, no electronic device, no switch

There are many variations to perform it

Introducing to you: SUKMA
