
Wanderlust by Vernet Magic

Wanderlust [won-der-luhst] Noun

An uncontrollable desire to travel; to explore; and seek adventure.

The magician shows a world map and a jumbo deck with different flags printed on them.

The magician says:

"When you travel with your loved one on a vacation, who decides the destination? You both make an agreement or maybe one of you decides?"

A couple is asked to walk on to the stage. One spectator and the magician begin to tear the map into little pieces.

The other spectator takes the jumbo "flag" deck. One spectator starts to deal the pieces and the other, at the same time, deals the "flag" cards. Each one can stop whenever they want their decision is absolutely free. Maybe one stops at the beginning and the other a while later.

After both have stopped, the magician asks to see which one is the flag she selected; it is the flag of Japan. Then, the other spectator looks at the map's piece that he stopped at. It's amazingly, Japan! Both are completely free choices, they could have stopped anywhere, regardless of that: a PERFECT MATCH will always happen!
