The magician shows an envelope that contains a prediction and shows spectator their card.

He then opens the envelope from which he pulls out a card; he places the card on the table saying that it is the chosen card...But he is wrong.

The magician then removes another card only to find himself in the same predicament. The magician repeats his failed attempts another two times after only to be left looking like a failure... but then as all attempts seem in vain the magician surprises the audience with the correct GIANT card.

This illusion is amazing and easy to do.

These cards are poker size.
