Pocket Illusion by Astor

The magician uses 5 special cards each of them showing one part of an illusion box on their faces. You see the parts of an attractive assistant's body in the parts of the box. On the backs of these cards you see the wooden back represented of this illusion box. The performer openly mixes the different parts of the assistant's body but in the next second these ones shows up again in the right order in a mysterious way. After this all cards can be examined by the audience. Next the magicians takes out 5 other cards where not just the front of the box is opened but the back too so the mixed parts of the body can be seen clearly from both sides. Despite of this the individual part of the body will be in the right order from both view in a second. I recommend this spectacular trick to those close-up artists who want to perform an illusion and to the illusionists want to remain at their genre still in close-up environment. This trick only require a minimal sleight of hand so can be learned easily.
