

Chroma by Mark Lemon

In the world of magic, the best tricks are often the simplest. Mark Lemon's "Chroma" is elegantly simple, but deceptively powerful!

Stroop Tests. You've seen them across the internet, but probably have had no idea what they're called. Chroma disguises itself as a basic Stroop test designed to test cognitive ability. But this is all you need to reveal the thoughts that only exist in your spectator's mind - it's "Stroop-pidly" powerful.

You begin by asking them to think of a color and imagine that word, big and bold right in front of them. With a timer and the Chroma card, you test them on how quickly they can find their word in various colors. Without them ever saying a word, you know exactly what they are thinking.

Wonderfully Compact, Powerfully Revealed

Chroma's beauty lies in its simplicity - packs smaller than a credit card but smashes more minds than a hydraulic press. How you choose to reveal their thought of color is completely up to you. Reveal it immediately, as if you can effortlessly pry into their inner thoughts. Or use this secret knowledge to reveal multiple thought-of objects or words.

Effortlessly Mastered

Chroma is delightfully easy to perform, requiring no strenuous memory work. Once you learn it, you can pick it up months down the road and STILL be able to perform it.

This is Mark Lemon's Chroma, an elegantly Simple, yet Stroop-idly powerful mind-reading system.
