

Nick Lakin's Cereal Killer - Trick

Everyone that sees this performed, wants one. It's a simple, funny, and compact professional routine.. A fantastic opener for any stand-up show. The magician says he has three predictions inside an envelope. When asked for an animal, a letter, and a grocery product, the three predictions are revealed to be hilarious gag predictions until the last one, a UPC bar code , is turned over to reveal the correct product named!

Guaranteed laughs to start off the show with a killer magic ending. You receive everything you need to do the routine. This effect fools many magicians because of its simplicity. No forcing or secret writing of any kind is used - just a good solid routine along with a special envelope makes for a killer effect.
