

Adrián Carratala's Ring to Shoelace

Adrián Carratala

has jealously guarded the secret with which he managed to fool Penn & Teller. Now you too can amaze your audience with this miracle!

Effect: A borrowed ring disappears under a handkerchief and immediately appears tied to the magician's shoelace.

And this is the best of all:

- The magician never approaches the shoe.
- It doesn't depend on clothing. It could be presented completely naked (only with shoes, of course).
- The gimmick is installed in 5 seconds, and the routine resets in another 5 seconds.
- The entire system is self-contained and fits in a pocket.
- No duplicate rings are used. The ring held by the spectator is their genuine ring.
- There are no steals or suspicious movements; hands are shown empty at all times.
- No reels, threads, or elastic are used. The gimmick is designed for professional use.

Each unit has been handcrafted in Spain with great care and supervised one-by-one by Adrián.

Important: The use of dark shoes and/or with black laces is recommended.

Inspired by an original idea by Richard Sanders.
