

Dot to Dot by Manoj Kaushal

It looks like a simple card game - but it isn't

Pulled from the secret vault of unpublished ideas by the creator you already know - Manoj Kaushal - comes a totally NEW PREMISE.

A spectator freely selects a card from a pack of dot-to-dot images. Each card contains a picture, created by joining a unique sequence of numbered dots. They select a card but keep the card face down - so the image and the number sequence remain a complete mystery. Nobody knows what they chose.

Now you propose a challenge: to play the game without ever seeing the card. Handing the spectator a blank number grid, you begin to slowly and confidently call out numbers - one by one.

The spectator follows along, connecting the dots exactly as you instruct. Suddenly, before their very eyes, an image begins to take shape. When the drawing is complete, they finally turn over their card for the very first time...

It's the exact same image.

Formed by the exact same numbers.

All without you ever seeing their card.

- Completely impossible: No one knows the chosen image until the end.
- Interactive & visual: The audience literally watches the picture emerge.
- Plays big, packs small: Perfect for close-up, parlor, or stage.
- Feels like real mind reading: No cards to remember, no words spoken, just thoughts translated into drawings.

Whether you're performing for one person across a coffee table or a full audience on stage, DOT TO DOT gives you the power to read minds with absolute certainty.

This is not just a tool.

This is not another script.

This is a BRAND NEW PREMISE.
