

Standard R.W.W. Left Hand (Ben Seidman's Ring Watch Wonder)

For almost twenty years, "Ring, Watch, Wonder" has been a mainstay in Ben Seidman's professional repertoire. It has been tested on the biggest stages imaginable, from the bright lights of Penn & Teller: Fool Us to high-stakes corporate galas and private events. Now, this battle-tested routine can be yours.

"Ring, Watch, Wonder" (or R.W.W. for short) is a streamlined reimagining of the classic "Ring, Watch, Wallet" plot, popularized by Tommy Wonder. The premise is lightning-fast: you place your ring, your watch, and your cash into an envelope. The moment the flap is sealed, you tear the paper to shreds. The items are back where they started. The ring is back on your hand, the watch is strapped to your wrist, and the money has reappeared inside your previously empty wallet.

Many magicians avoid this plot because traditional methods are often restrictive. Most versions require you to open the show with it, use a reel, wear specific clothing, or hunt down expensive props. R.W.W. has none of those restrictions.

- Total Versatility: Perform it at any point in your set, from the opener to the encore.
- No Wardrobe Constraints: There are no jackets required and no awkward pulls or reels to manage.
- Built for the Real World: The angles are incredibly clean, making it reliable for both stage and parlor settings.
- Complete Package: You receive every necessary prop, including a high-quality JOL Hember wallet.

A performer of Ben's caliber rarely releases something straight out of his professional repertoire, and it is even rarer that that material is as accessible as R.W.W. This is a routine you will actually use. It is approachable to learn, practical to perform, and structured to hold up in real-world situations.

"Ring Watch Wonder" comes in right- or left-handed options. Ben recommends you purchase the version for the hand opposite the one you wear your watch. (In other words, choose the right-handed edition if you wear your watch on your left wrist, and the left-handed edition if you wear your watch on your right wrist.) You receive everything you'll need to perform the routine, including:

- Ungimmicked, size 10 ring (You can switch this out for your own ring if you want.)
- Leather JOL Hember wallet
- Black watch with matching gimmick
- 25 Envelopes
- Over an hour of video instruction from Ben on the routine, all the moves, and how to customize it to make it your own.
