

Tossed Out Humanity by Lee Hathaway and Paul Martin

Lee Hathaway (Fool Us Winner, S1) and Paul Martin (Pro Magic Academy) are two of the UK's most in-demand magicians. As such, they know exactly what lands with real audiences and this latest collaboration is a direct result of that experience.

Lifelong fans of the tossed-out deck plot, they've fused it with the world's most popular adult party game (Cards Against Humanity) to create a stand-up routine that is both deceptively strong and consistently hilarious.

Three question cards are peeked at. Three answer cards are peeked at. You then proceed to read the minds of your audience and match them up in the most unexpected and laugh-out-loud way possible. Built on the philosophy that a 'card trick that doesn't feel like a card trick' is far more entertaining, this routine hits hard and keeps the laughs rolling throughout.

You'll receive everything you need to turn any Cards Against Humanity set into ten minutes of comedy mentalism gold, including a cleverly engineered gimmick that eliminates awkward deck switches entirely. And if you want to push it further, you can easily create your own custom cards and gags to make the routine uniquely yours.

This is the kind of thinking, structure, and real-world practicality that only comes from seasoned performers. It's commercial, it's hard-hitting, and most importantly, it's built to absolutely destroy in front of a live audience.
