

Traffic Light

The magician shows a tube decorated with three colored dots. When he lifts it, the audience discovers there's a second tube inside—clear—with three balls in the same colors.

The balls are removed, and the clear tube is covered with the outer one. The performer then drops the balls in following the order shown by the dots: green first, then yellow, and finally red. A magical gesture... and when the outer tube is lifted, the balls are stacked in a completely different order: red, green, and yellow.

The effect is repeated a second time and, amazingly, the outcome is the same. For the third demonstration, the magician adds a twist: the red ball is placed in a small bag. Another magical gesture... and the ball vanishes from the bag, only to reappear inside the tubes, stacked exactly as in the previous performances.

A timeless routine that's always a hit with kids.

- A quick, visual routine—perfect for children's shows.
- For the ball vanish, you can use any method you prefer, including a classic change bag (not included, but available on our website).
