

Houdini's Handkerchief by Juan Pablo

HOUDINI'S HANDKERCHIEF

is a storyteller-style routine about how Houdini escaped from two police officers guarding him while handcuffed and tied up.

At the end of the routine, something very unexpected happens.

Houdini is represented by a red handkerchief, and two police officers by two blue handkerchiefs. The police officers tie Houdini up, and in the end, Houdini escapes, leaving the two police officers, represented by the blue handkerchiefs, tied together.

The audience is then invited to check that the knots are real.

This trick is ideal for kids' parties and also for shows for the whole family.

It's very easy to perform, and in the end, you end up clean, and the spectators can check the handkerchiefs.
